Matthew 22:15-22

Icons - October 2021

As we've walked through the Gospels the last few months a few questions have popped up: Who are you? What do you want Jesus to do for you? This week we'll be asking the question: Whose are you? To whom do you belong?

We like to think we are our own. We are the masters of our fate and the captains of our souls. Jesus makes the point that none of us are our own. We are always beholden to someone or something else. We are either beholden to God (as he made us to be) or we are beholden to this world (because of our sin and rebellion).

As you meditate on this week's text consider these questions:

- when people look at you what or who do they see?
- where does your allegiance lie? Is that apparent by how you speak and what you value?
- what in your life needs to change so lost people will more easily see Jesus in you?
